ROY SHATTUCK UNDER ARREST

BRAZIL MAN, LATE REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS, ARRESTER LATE WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON BY MARSHAL STOREN ON CONSPIRACY TO BUY ELECTION BOARD IN TERRE HAUTE.

FURNISHES $5,000 BOND

BRAZIL, Ind., Feb. 10.—United States Marshal Mark Storen, of Indianapolis, arrived in the city from Terre Haute at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon and placed under arrest, Attorney Roy L. Shattuck, late Republican candidate for Congress in the Fifth District, on an indictment returned by the federal grand jury on the charge of having conspired to defraud the government.

Before coming to Brazil, Marshal Storen had arrested at Terre Haute, the following:

William E. Myers, Republican candidate for county assessor of Vigo county.

Warren Soules, Republican candidate for treasurer of Vigo county.

William S. Pears, Republican candidate for recorder of Vigo county.

Morton H. Holmes, Republican candidate for Commissioner of Vigo county.

Marshal Storen arrived in the city on the 2:28 traction car and walked east to the Federal building where he inquired the location of Attorney Shattuck's office. Shortly before 3 o'clock Marshal Storen called at the offices of McNutt, Hutchinson & Shattuck and read the federal indictment to Mr. Shattuck.

Shattuck had received notice that the indictments would be served today and had already arranged with a number of his friends to sign as sureties to the bond for his appearance in the Federal court at Indianapolis. The bond was in the sum of $5,000.

It has been rumored here since the return of the first batch of indictments for election frauds at Terre Haute that Shattuck was charged with being implicated with a number of Republicans politicians in Terre Haute in an attempt to buy up a number of election boards in the notorious Sixth ward at Terre Haute in an effort to secure his election to Congress.

The indictment on which the arrest was made today is in two counts and is founded on the same principle as that which was held sound by Judge A. B. Anderson in overruling demurrer to the first indictment.

Count one charges that the object of the conspiracy was to deprive citizens of their rights to vote and sit on election boards which is guaranteed to them by the United States constitution and laws.

The second count charges a conspiracy to defraud the United States by bringing about a maladministration of the laws for the election of United States senator and congressmen.

It charges that the object of the conspiracy was to foist upon the United States as representative in congress Roy L. Shattuck, a man whom they intended to elect illegally.

The previous indictment of conspiracy on which Roberts and others were arrested charged that the object of that conspiracy was to foist upon the United States as representative in congress a man not duly elected, whose name was unknown to the grand jurors, and District Attorney Dailey announced that at that time Representative Ralph Moss, Democratic candidate, was not connected with the conspiracy "by a single utterance."

At the end of the second count a number of acts are set out.

It is understood that evidence in the office of District Attorney Dailey is that a pool of $1,000 was raised to buy up election boards in the Sixth and First wards and in the Taylorville precinct in the interest of the Republicans who were in the conspiracy.

At the end of the second count a number of overt acts are set out.

U. S. Marshal Mark Storen, who had charge of the first federal round up when Mayor Roberts and others of his official family were arrested, arrived in Terre Haute early Wednesday. He went to the office of Attorney Carson Hamill of the firm of Hamill, Hickey & Evans, who will represent the Republicans.

"Everything is ready for the men to come in and sign," said Storen while waiting for the indicted men to appear and give bond. He said he would approve the bonds here.

The indictment sets forth that Myers on Oct. 20 paid Frank Hess $50; that on Oct. 21 he called at Hess's saloon and had a conversation with Hess in his private room.

The indictment charges that on Oct. 15, $100 was paid to Frank Hess on behalf of Fears and that on Oct. 23 Fears held a conversation with Hess.

Soules, it is charged, paid to Frank Hess $250 on Oct. 15, and paid Hess $100 in behalf of another Republican candidate who was indicted.

It is charged that Holmes called on Hess on Sept. 15. Holmes received $300 from Shattuck on Oct. 8, it is alleged, and Holmes received a check for $200 on the same day. The indictment charges that on Oct. 20 Holmes gave Hess $550.

SAYS WELL WILL PRODUCE FIFTY BARRELS A DAY

PHIL S. FENN, PROPRIETOR OF THE OIL WELL PROJECT NEAR BAINBRIDGE, REPORTS THAT DRILL WENT THROUGH 30 FEET OF OIL SAND LATE WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON.

WILL GO STILL DEEPER

The latest report from the oil well being drilled on the Miller farm near Bainbridge, by Phil Fenn and his associates, is that the drillers struck oil sand late Wednesday afternoon and that the drill had gone through 30 feet of oil sand. According to Mr. Fenn the well, as it is, will probably produce 50 barrels of oil a day.

The drilling will be continued, however, in hopes of striking a deeper and more productive vein of oil sand.

It is said that there now is 1000 feet of water in the well but that the oil is forcing its way through the water in large quantities. Casing has been ordered and as soon as it arrives the well will be cased to its entire depth. In this way the water can be kept out of the well and the exact production of oil ascertained. The well now is about 1500 feet deep and is cased to the depth of 1200 feet.

Those who are in charge of the drilling refuse to discuss the well and so it is difficult to secure any great amount of information regarding the situation. The statements made here, however, came from Mr. Fenn and are said to be authentic.

NO SALARIED CHAPLIN FOR THE STATE FARM

The members of the board of trustees of the state farm, who met at the farm near Putnamville on Wednesday, put an absolute stamp of untruth on the rumor which was current last week that the board would secure a salaried chaplain for the farm at a salary of $1,600 a year.

The rumor was started by an Indianapolis paper which printed a story intimating that the trustees had discussed the question and had decided on the man whom they would appoint and the salary the position would pay.

The members of the board of trustees stated Tuesday that the question had never been discussed by them as a body or individually until Wednesday. The rumor caused the trustee to take up the question Wednesday and it was agreed that no salaried chaplain would be secured. The work will be left to the local ministers and the ministers of the neighboring towns, as well as the DePauw university theological students, who will be invited to hold meetings at the farm each Sunday as soon as the farm is prepared to care for prisoners. The men who are invited to have charge of the meetings will be given a small fee for their work.

HEALTH OFFICER ORDERS ARRESTS

MEN WHO VIOLATED QUARANTINE REGULATIONS NOW IN FORCE IN MT. MERIDIAN NEIGHBORHOOD, ARE FACING CHARGES PUNISHABLE BY FINES AND JAIL SENTENCES.

LAW WILL BE ENFORCED

Three warrants were sworn out by Dr. Jerome King this morning against Floy Turner and his father, Charley Turner, who are charged with breaking quarantine regulations. The two men reside just southeast of Mt. Meridian. The son is charged with entering a house under quarantine without the consent of the health officer and also with breaking quarantine by leaving a house under quarantine. The father is charged with influencing his son to break quarantine regulations. Each offense is punishable by a fine of from $10 to $50 and no more than six months in jail.

The affidavits grew out of young Turner going to the home of James Terry, which was under quarantine. When the home was first placed under quarantine, Mrs. Floy Turner, who is a daughter of Mr. Terry, was in the home and she was placed under quarantine with a number of others who were in the house.

After the house had been placed under quarantine young Turner went to the Terry home without the consent of the health officer. This is in violation of the quarantine law. Upon entering the home he automatically became under quarantine. He remained at the Terry home until Wednesday when his father drove to the Terry home and taking his son in his buggy drove to the Turner home.

Immediately after young Turner had broken his quarantine Dr. King was besieged with telephone calls from Mt. Meridian telling him of the affair. He immediately drove to the Turner home and placed it under quarantine. This morning he swore out the warrants against the two men. The two men will be arrested as soon as they are released from quarantine and brought to Greencastle for trial.

Dr. King states that practices of this kind must cease immediately if the epidemic of smallpox is stamped out. He will deal with anyone who breaks the quarantine regulations just as he has with the Turner men. As the penalty for such offenses is severe it would be well for anyone to think twice before breaking any quarantine regulations.

Dr. King stated this morning that the people who live in the neighborhood in which the epidemic is prevalent are supposed to stay at home and not run around, whether they have been exposed or not. This must be done or he will have to make his quarantine more stringent, placing everyone in the neighborhood under quarantine regulations. By care on the part of those living in the district the epidemic soon can be stamped out but unless the rules are observed the disease probably will spread.

FIRST MAPLE SYRUP OF SEASON ON MARKET

The first maple syrup of the season has been marketed in Greencastle. Charley Watson, a farmer, who resides north of town, was the first to bring any new syrup to town. Mr. Watson opened his camp during the few warm days about a week ago and the run of sap was sufficient to make several gallons of molasses. The product was marketed in Greencastle at $1.25 a gallon.

LEGISLATIVE GOSSIP.
(By Lew Ellingham.)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 10.—William Jennings Bryan is the second of the nation's dignitaries to pay his respects to Indiana's capitol within the last few weeks. President Wilson celebrated Jackson Day here and the newspapers and the people of the entire country are still talking about him, many of them even yet being mystified as to why he came and why he said it. Mr. Bryan has always been noted for his stirring qualities having at his disposal the most ardent friends and the most persistent detractors in the universe. I am sure he lives close to a quarter of a century ahead of the country, and that much in advance of our best students of political economy. So it is easy for him to be a leader. In truth and fact he simply out distances all others and for many years past has been in a class all by himself. There is but one Bryan, one peerless leader, one real idol of Democracy and his name is William Jennings Bryan. His party seldom agrees with all his theories of government and his ideas of party discipline, yet they follow him most of the way and love him the more for his moral courage, his indomitable will, his rugged honesty and his beautiful oratory. He sprang nothing new for Bryan while here. Of course he took advanced ground for state wide and nation wide prohibition made a strong appeal for woman's suffrage, thinks Indiana should rebuild its constitution and that the legislature should forthwith make a primary law for the nomination of all party candidates from constable to president. While none of these reforms are written into the statute books of our state, yet Bryan has advocated most of them for several years, although being but a recent convert to woman's suffrage. I presume that Bryan is right because he usually is right. The only question is whether this is the day and this the hour for Indiana to cast aside tradition and anew all the political machinery that has made Indiana the envy of every other state in the union; whether this is the time to hold a constitutional convention, especially in view of the fact that this very question was submitted in a referendum to the people at the last general election and was defeated by more than a hundred thousand majority; whether the submission of a primary election to the people of the state would not meet the same fate, and whether by submitting this question in a referendum would not be more in keeping with the platform declaration of the Indiana Democracy, than it would be for the present legislature to enact such a law. Mr. Bryan also favors the referendum and the recall. As the referendum is now a new thing in this state, why not submit all the questions and let the voters of the state discuss them and vote upon them? It is a cinch that should the Democrats be in power and the people would make a declaration in favor of any one or all of the Bryan suggestions, they would be enacted into law just as quick as the legislative machinery could place their stamp of approval upon them. But Bryan is a great Bryan. His two days in Indianapolis will long be a memory for the many who saw and heard him. He is a prime favorite with all classes and conditions of our people, and will always be a power for good in advocating those things that will make us morally and politically better. It will always be so. It matters not whether he is President, Secretary of State, or just a plain citizen of the United States. As long as God gives him life and strength, he will be found on the firing line, doing and saying those things which will better enable us to live in more strict accord with the teachings of our fathers.

Mr. Bryan wound up a most pleasant two days with an address before the transportation club. This was the real event, providing you measure it from the standpoint of elegance. It cost five dollars per, so the brand of grape juice was the best and most costly the land affords, the menu was superb, the service unexcelled and the four hundred banqueters all attired in the latest fashion, were prosperous business men and they looked it. For the most part Mr. Bryan was in hostile company and he knew it. That is, the men whom he addressed, the large majority of them at least, had always been against him whenever he appeared upon the scene as a candidate, and it happens that he has so appeared three times. But Mr. Bryan played square with them. He really astonished some of his friends with his statement that he believed every corporate interest should pay a reasonable dividend and interest charge upon all stock, bonds and mortgages which go to make up the real value of the railroads. This will be interpreted to mean that if the present rates of the railroads are not sufficient to pay all expenses incident to a conservative management, and then pay interest upon bonds and dividends to the holders of stock, then the rates should be increased until such payments can be made. A bill is now pending before the Indiana General Assembly asking for an increase in the railroad rates of the state from two to two and a half cents a mile, and by those who favor such an increase Mr. Bryan's remarks will be looked upon with favor.

Samuel Adams a Boston Brewer

Samuel Adams, known in his day as the "father of the revolution" and one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, operated a brewery and malt house in Boston during the stirring Revolutionary times.

That Adams believed in the fullest measure of liberty to the individual is evidenced by his leadership of the famous "tea party" which boarded a British ship at night and emptied its cargo of tea into the bay as a protest against the King's infringement upon the personal rights of the Colonists.

Adams was also the spokesman of the little band of patriots who, after the Boston massacre, demanded and obtained the removal of the English troops from the city.

Indiana Brewers Association

THE VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

To the Superintendents, Teachers and Children of the Public Schools of Indiana:—

It has not been the policy of this administration to seek donations from the public schools for any cause, no matter how meritorious it appeared.

But a call has come to us through the Governor of Indiana, from an organization whose splendid philanthropic work has reached to every quarter of the globe; an organization that has served the needy and suffering in periods of great international strife and has proved, at all times, a blessing to mankind. This organization—"The Society of Red Cross"—is asking the public schools to aid, financially in relieving the distress of millions of children whose homes are devastated and whose schools are closed through the ravages of war. Surely no appeal could be made in the interests of a holier cause, and for it, we urge your earnest cooperation and enthusiastic support.

February 12th, 1915, the day upon which this contribution is to be made, is the anniversary of the birth of a great statesman and leader, Abraham Lincoln, whose unselfish devotion to right and whose broad human sympathy made him the idol of a nation. This war relief fund, to be known as the Lincoln Fund, has been started by the State Department of Public Instruction with a contribution of $50.00 and we are asking that an amount of one penny, or more if the donor cares to enlarge it, be contributed by each child in the schools of Indiana. A receipt for the full amount from each school will be returned to it, and can be preserved as a souvenir of the sympathy and generosity of children in one land toward those in another. The names of the schools and amounts contributed will be published in the papers of the state.

The lessons of unselfishness, sympathy and kindness that will come from such a movement in the public schools will be far more effective than months of formal instruction in the abstract principles of these essentials of mind and heart.

This request for contributions includes school officials, superintendents and teachers. It is a state-wide appeal and is addressed not only to the public schools of Indiana, but to every educational institution in the state.

Sincerely yours,
CHAS. A. GREATHOUSE.
Address all contributions to Chas. A. Greathouse, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Indianapolis, Indiana.

A Tribute to Womanhood.
In this extraordinary war, extraordinary developments have manifested themselves, such as have not been seen in former wars; and, among these manifestations, nothing has been more remarkable than these favors for the relief of suffering soldiers and their families and the chief agents of these favors are the women of America.

"I am not accustomed to use the language of eulogy. I have never studied the art of paying compliments to women; but I must say that if all that has been said by orators and poets since the creation of the world in praise of women were applied to the women of America, it would not do them justice for their conduct during the war.

"I will close by saying, God bless the women of America!"—Abraham Lincoln.

Helping His Neighbor
At a recent banquet William F. McCombs told of a conversation in a club in which several philanthropic personages were mentioned and lauded to the skies.

The conversation had gone to some length, Mr. McCombs said, when a man who was sitting in a corner arose with a merry smile flitting over his features, and broke into the gabfest.

"Your philanthropists are all right," he remarked, "but I think it is only just that my next-door neighbor should be included in the kindly disposed bunch."

"We are willing to add him to the list," responded one of the others, "but he really so generously inclined?"

"Well, I should say that he is," was the emphatic declaration of the first. "Dozens of tramps hammer at his back door, and I have never known him to send one away empty-handed."

"You don't mean it?" returned the second, a trifle incredulously.

"That's right," rejoined the first; "he always gives them a letter of introduction to me."

Baths are not popular with this man. It is his custom to show up each morning wearing the grime he carried as he left the shop the previous night. He appeared one day last week with a touch of the yolk of an egg upon his lip.

Seeking to have a little fun, a fellow employee observed:

"Hello, Jake, bet I can tell what you had for breakfast this morning."

Words were banded back and forth and finally a wager was made. Then came the climax:

"Eggs."

"You're wrong," said Jake. "We had eggs yesterday morning."

"That is easily done. All you have to do is adopt my system and in a little while you will get so that you can remember anything at all."

"My stars! That isn't what I want. I want my memory fixed so I can't remember anything. I have been called a witness in a graft trial."

Bessie was sitting on the hotel veranda one afternoon when another child, audibly dressed, began to parade up and down before her, flitting her fan and swishing her skirts airily. Bessie stood it as long as she could, but finally burst out:

"Dresses an' fans does not make ladies."

"But they helps," the other flung back over her shoulder as she sauntered by.

Turned the Tables

On one occasion, when a certain parliamentary candidate, known as a clever speaker and very effective in dealing with a hostile audience, was addressing a meeting in his constituency, he had no sooner risen and said "Gentlemen" than some one threw an egg at him. Quite unperturbed, he turned to the offender and said:

"I was not speaking to you, sir."

The Small Boy's Worry

Two or three urchins were running down a long and steep flight of steps, when the foremost stumbled and fell head-long twenty or thirty feet, and was only stopped near the bottom by doubling backward around the newel post. It looked as though his back were broken, and that he was a dead small boy, but he gathered himself up, thrust his hands anxiously in his trousers pockets and ejaculated:

"B'gosh, I b'lieve I lost a cent."

"Pa, how can guns kick when they have no legs?"

"Don't ask foolish questions."

"Guns haven't any legs, have they, pa?"

"Certainly not."

"Well, then, what's the use of their having breeches?"

MOTORCYCLES IN MODERN WARFARE

Daring Riders as Scouts, Dispatch Bearers and in Hospital Service.

IRISHMEN ARMED WITH GUNS

Germany Mounts Its Aids de Camp and Messengers on Fast-Moving Machines.

American army officers are studying the use of the motorcycle in modern warfare. Many of them are ardent advocates of the extension of that service in our army work, confident that the operations of the thoroughly drilled motorcyclists of European armies will show that it is destined to be one of the most important of the auxiliaries of the army. Already the motorcycle, both in its original form as a means of rapid locomotion for a single dispatch rider and in the later development as a mobile way of carrying observation officers about a field of operations more quickly than on horseback, have been tested here incidentally.

Experimental use has been made of the machines in the regular service as well as in the National Guard of several of the states. A serious study of the possibilities of the service has not yet been made as it has been abroad. Such men in the service as are a little ahead of the sometimes dilatory movements of our military authorities have speculated already on the possibilities of the service, and are waiting with interest detailed statements of the conduct of the campaign in Europe in order to see what part the machines have played and how far expectations as to their utility have been realized.

In the advance of the German army through Belgium both Germans and Belgians used the motorcyclist largely in scouting work. Aeroplanes, used as the eyes of both the invaders and defenders, have located scouting parties and the advance armies, and then through the services of motorcyclists have been able to communicate swiftly and certainly with the bodies of cavalry, whose duty it has been to hew the way for the safer movement of the infantry masses and the supporting artillery. The French and English have used their motorcycle corps for the same purpose. Whether Austria and Russia are now using these scouts is not definitely known among military men in this country, no details of army operations being at hand as yet.

With the side cars attached to these rapidly moving machines they were used in the transfer of surgeons from reserve corps to the front, where the services of the doctors were needed to attend the wounded. These side-car machines are also being used to move wounded from the field to the hospitals in the rear, doing the work more humanely and rapidly than it could be done by stretcher bearers or ambulances, thus adding materially to the effectiveness of the hospital train and relieving fighting men of that duty. Nurses have been rushed in the side-seat cycles from one point to another when motor cars intended for their transportation were in use elsewhere. Supplies were also carried in the carriers attached to these high-powered machines.

As the motorcyclist follows the airship fleet and precedes the cavalry column while an army is in motion, his work is dangerous in the extreme. Only men who are absolutely devoid of fear, reckless and yet cool-headed, able to think and act quickly in emergencies, are used in the dispatch-bearing and scouting end of the service. A soldier looking for excitement is pretty certain to get all he wants in this part of a service that has been developed almost entirely in the last two years.

British army officers have used the motorcycle corps with the best of results in the stringing of field telegraph and telephone wires and rapid installation of this means of communication on the field in army maneuvers. They took to France men trained especially in this branch of the service, to be used in place of the older methods where bulky wagons were used to transport telegraph and telephone equipment.

American manufacturers have comparatively little interest in the use of the machine in war, but one of them having extensive works abroad, that one in England. But they have shipped many machines for government use to Japan, where it is believed there is an efficient motorcycle corps attached to the army, as the machines have been of the 7-horse-power type, the most powerful made. It is hardly probable that these are intended for rural mail delivery service.

THE YOUTH AND THE SAGE

Copyright Puck

Once upon a time (says my Arabian author) there lived a Sage who was noted for his wisdom, from the city of Bagdad to the S. E. corner of the N. W. quarter of the south half of township 22, range 49, east of the 96° East of Greenwich, and such a warm baby in Sagredo was he that he made his home in the sage-brush, and lived entirely on sage-tea.

As rumors of his wisdom spread abroad in the land, many people came to interview him and get tips on various things, as even yet the custom in Bagdad and Wall Street, for it is commonly considered easier to drop onto a ready-made pointer than to learn by experience. For experience is a hard teacher, and wastes his pupils with a halter-strap on the end whereof is a buckle.

Now, so great did the demand for the wisdom of this Sage become that he started a factory and canned wisdom of various kinds, all of which he sold for spot cash. And his prices were fourteen shekels per can in plain cans, and fifteen shekels with a can-opener, and he did a big business at the old stand, and advertised from Trebizond to East Orange.

Now, this Sage was wise on all subjects, and knew all things regarding the earth beneath, the heavens above, and the rapid transit subways under the earth. He knew why a hen goes over the road, and when a door is not a door, and when New York would have real rapid transit, and many other things too numerous to put on papyrus.

But it came to pass that in the days of Alkassan, Caliph of Bagdad, when the Sage was full of years, that he fell ill, his time having come, and he advertised his wisdom factory for sale cheap.

Now, there lived in the city of Yonkers, beyond the domain of Caliph, a youth who bore the name of John Smith; and, hearing of the approaching sale of the wisdom factory, the youth journeyed to the sage-brush, for he was in love with one Sally Jones, and he desired to set himself up in some good business and get married. And he said to himself, "If this old jay is not a fake his outfit will be a good thing to push along, and I will buy it and move the whole works to Harlem and make rich, for I will be able to sell wisdom to many men. But if the old duffer is working a shell-game, I will proffer him the icy glove and pursue myself."

Therefore, the youth when he had entered the presence of the Sage, asked him but two questions and the Sage answered them truthfully. And the first question was this: "Do you really know everything worth knowing?"

And to this question the Sage replied: "I do."

Upon receiving this reply, the youth asked in an eager voice: "What, then, do you think of Sally Jones?"

To this the Sage was forced to reply in the following words: "I never heard of the lady."

When the youth heard this he arose in wrath and pulled down his trousers, and put his hat upon his head, preparing to depart for Yonkers. But ere he went he spoke.

"You old jay," he said, "you are a hot Sage, you are, I don't think! You ought to have a leather medal, for fair! If I were you I would shut up my wisdom-shop and run a peanut-stand in Erebus until I cut a few wisdom-teeth. Any hawseed that claims to know everything worth knowing and doesn't know Sally Jones is a fraud, and his wisdom isn't worth two cents of F. O. B. New York."

Here (says my Arabian author) ends the tale of the Youth and the Sage, and the moral is, that when a young man is in love all the wisdom in the Encyclopedia is as nothing compared to one hair from his lady-love's tresses.

"As to what comes after marriage," (says my erudite author), "the gracious Allah has kindly spared me the misfortune of being able to write knowingly thereon."

NOT QUITE.

"Young man," inquired her father sternly, "will you give her a home like the one she has been used to?" "No," replied the truthful suitor, "for there will be no grumpy father to come home and make every one miserable by his kicking over trifles and swearing at matters in general. There will be no mother to scold her from morning to night for wasting time merely because she wants to be neat. There will be no big brother to abuse her for not doing half of his work, and no little brother to make enough noise to drive her crazy when her head aches. There won't be any younger sister to insist on reading some trashy novel while she does all the work. She will not have with me a home like she has been used to, not if I can help it."

SCHOOLED BY EXPERIENCE.

Once upon a time a Politician, meeting a Living Issue, inadvertently took it up. But almost at once he dropped it. "Stung!" he muttered significantly.

His pains, however, were not devoid of profit. For henceforth he was a Practical Politician, and passed by on the other side.

The fact that money does not make the man seldom worries the man who is trying to make the money.

You will find that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has recognized advantages over most medicines in use for coughs and colds. It does not suppress a cough but loosens and relieves it. It aids expectoration and opens the secretions, which enables the system to throw off a cold. It counteracts any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia. It contains no opium or other narcotic, and may be given to a child as confidently as to an adult. For sale by all others.

A Washington inventor has patented a machine run by electricity that grinds as many beans into flour in forty minutes as a man can grind by hand in a day.

Annual Consumption of Wood by the Wood Manufacturing Industries.

Statistics have been compiled by the forest service which show for the first time precisely how the lumber produced in the country is utilized. About 45 billion feet of lumber of all kinds is the annual production of the United States; of this near 25 billion feet, board measure, are further manufactured, the other portion remaining for rough construction lumber and for similar purposes. This is exclusive of material which reaches its final use in the form of fuel, railroad ties, posts, poles, pulpwood, cooperage, wood distillates, and the barks and extracts demanded by the tanning industry.

The work of collecting and compiling the figures extended over a considerable period and was carried out state by state; but as one full year was made the basis of statistics in each state the total is a fair average of the use of lumber in further manufacture in the whole country. Between 50 and 60 per cent of the lumber produced is subject to further manufacture. In preparing the figures in this way, however, it should be remembered that considerable material reaches shops and factories in the form of logs, bolts and billets without having passed through sawmills, and while this material is included in these statistics this fact should be remembered in comparing statistics with those of lumber production.

Nearly or quite 100 different woods are used in this country under their own names, while an unknown number find their way to shops and factories without being identified or separately listed, except under general names. In quantity the soft woods, the needle-leaf or coniferous trees, are most important, but there is a greater number of species among the hard woods, or broadleaf trees. Yellow pine comes first with more than eight billion feet, followed by white pine with three billion, and Douglas fir with a little more than two billion. It should be understood, however, that the term "yellow pine" includes several species, the three most important of which are longleaf, shortleaf and loblolly. Oak, including all species, has nearly two billion feet, and is the most important hard wood. Maple comes next.

Dogwood comes about halfway down the list with more than seven million board feet, and of those species mentioned Turkish boxwood comes last, with less than thirty thousand feet, followed by many others too insignificant to list, but making a total of all kinds of more than a million feet. Of the native species, laurel, holly and yucca fall very near the foot of the list in relative quantities used.

Fifty-five principal industries use wood as raw material. Their relative importance is hard to indicate, because quantity alone is not in all cases a criterion of value of an industry to the community in which it is situated nor to the country as a whole.

More than one-half of the total consumption consists of planing mill products, the largest items of which are flooring, siding, ceiling and finishing. The next industry, in point of quantity of wood used, is the manufacture of boxes and crates. Nearly four times as much wood is demanded by makers of boxes and crates as by the builders of steam and electric cars, which come next, and fivefold the amount that goes into furniture, which in turn leads vehicle manufacture. Vehicles demand surprisingly large supplies of wood, and much of it must be of a high class in order to meet requirements for frames, gears and bodies.

Chairs, listed separately from furniture, come after novelties and supplies for dairymen, poultry keepers and apiarists, and just before handles and musical instruments. About midway down the list come pumps and wood pipes. Among the products important enough to list separately are canes and umbrella sticks, brooms, firearms, artificial limbs and tobacco pipes.

The appropriation of wood among the various industries grades from planing mill products, which take most, down to aeroplanes and dry kilns, at the bottom of the list.

$1,500 Shells

Every time a big gun is fired, 300 pounds goes in smoke and a splash, and there are 372 such guns in the fleet which Admiral Callaghan led out of Spithead recently. Torpedoes cost ten times as much, but they have the advantage, from the taxpayers' point of view, that they can be picked up again after they have been fired in practice.

Many of the big ships burn oil fuel as an auxiliary to their coal, or at least are fitted for that purpose, but there are 127 torpedo craft, besides the submarines, which burn oil fuel alone. In the aggregate their tanks and double bottoms can accommodate 10,315 tons of fuel, for which we have to pay 5 pounds a ton.

Coal is not so expensive, but it does not go so far. If the twenty-seven dreadnoughts now in full commission were sent on an eight hours' full-power coal-burning run, they would consume 4,320 tons of fuel, running up a bill of some 3,000 pounds.

If a single dreadnought battle squadron of eight ships were ordered to steam at full speed for twenty-four hours, and to fire each gun and each torpedo tube once, the cost to the nation would be approximately 200,000 pounds, allowing nothing for the depreciation of material.—Tid Bits.

A man who started out about twenty years ago with only 55 cents in his pocket is now worth about $100,000. His accumulation of wealth is owing to his frugality, good habits, strict attention to business, and the fact that an uncle died and left him the sum of $99,999.

All the children of the public schools of the city have been vaccinated or furnished a certificate showing that they have been vaccinated during the past seven years, according to the school authorities of the city. The development of several cases at Mt. Meridian caused the school officials to take the precaution. Although no cases have developed here, many people have been exposed to the disease and the city health officer ordered that all the children furnish a certificate of vaccination. Not a great many of the children had to be vaccinated. Several who moved here from rural districts were forced to take the precaution.

COMIC AND CELLULOID VALENTINES PASSING

New Order of Things More and More in Vogue, but It's Sad Blow to Sentimental.

Adieu to the celluloid valentine! The verdict is cruel for the sentimental youths but it's a money saver. Now with Valentine day approaching the local stores have begun to arrange their stocks of holiday offerings and the sad announcement is made that the fancy gifts once so much in vogue are not to be found. All the sticky-sweet sentimental flights of posey which the gallant swains were wont to indite their fair beloved have been shelved and instead books and candy and flowers have been placed.

Even the unavoidable "comic" is slipping from its pedestal of popularity and it is said that some stores have refused to display them. Just whether the European war or the high price of wheat can be blamed for the change in fashion it cannot be ascertained.

"Books have taken the place of the big celluloid and fancy valentines," said a local dealer. "Years ago we sold a good many fancy valentines but now we sell books and small cards."

WANT KLIENSMID FOR INSTITUTE

SUPERINTENDENT L. G. WRIGHT HAS MADE NEGOTIATIONS WITH PROF. RUFUS B. VON KLENISMID FOR A WEEK'S ENGAGEMENT HERE AS LECTURER FOR THE PUTNAM COUNTY TEACHERS' INSTITUTE AUGUST 16 TO 20.—NO DEFINITE ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETED.

DR. SHEAR IS CONSIDERED

The lecturer for the Putnam County Teachers' Institute which is to be held in the court house August 16 to 20, inclusive, will be either Prof. Rufus Bernhard von KleinSmid, president of the Arizona University at Tucson, Ariz., or Prof. S. R. Shear, the superintendent of the city schools at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., according to a statement made by County School Superintendent L. G. Wright this afternoon. Negotiations have been made with both speakers but no definite arrangements have been made.

The lecturer will deliver eleven lectures during institute week, ten day lectures, and one evening entertainment. The people of Greencastle and Putnam county have often heard Prof. KleinSmid and his ability as a lecturer is well known. He was one of the popular members of the DePauw university faculty several years ago and his services are in demand at all times. He was assistant superintendent of the Jeffersonville reformatory of Indiana for several years and it was only recently he was inaugurated as president of the Arizona school.

Dr. Shear has the reputation of being one of the greatest entertainers on the lecture platform. He is said to be a fluent talker and possesses excellent oratorical ability. Although public sentiment favors the selection of Prof. KleinSmid, it is assured that Putnam Co. people would be pleased with the services of either speaker.

Superintendent Wright stated today that an excellent institute program is being arranged and is expected to surpass in merit any given during the past few years.

MISS EDESTINA WILLIAMS DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

The death of Miss Edestina Williams, an esteemed resident of this city, occurred at her home on east Spring avenue this morning at 9 o'clock after a lingering illness. Miss Williams had been in poor health for the past three years, but was seriously ill only a few days. No funeral arrangements have been made.

Miss Williams was reared near Putnamville in Warren township and came to this city 18 years ago. She has made many friends through her pleasant manners and her excellent traits of character. She was a member of the Presbyterian church of this city, and devoted much of her time to church work.

She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Gertrude Williamson, who has made her home with her on Spring avenue, and two brothers, Worth Williams of this city and Frank Williams of Warren township.

Fine Butter Made from Trees

There are several trees that yield an oily substance much resembling butter and making a good substitute for it. Some of these grow in Europe, but the best known species are natives of Africa and South America.

The Bassia butyacea, or the "shea butter" as it is commonly called, grows wild on the west coast of Africa. The butter obtained from this tree is derived by pounding and pressing the seeds, which are three inches long. When extracted, the oil assumes the consistency of butter and smells like chocolate. Not only is it an excellent article of food, but it is used extensively for the making of soap and candles.

The seeds of the crab tree of Brazil and Guiana are 70 per cent fat and the "crab wood tallow" derived from them is excellent for the manufacture of candles and soap. When boiled, the tallow turns out yellow butter which contains a small quantity of strychnine. The latter, however, is easily removed by prolonged boiling.

From the nutmeg a useful fat is obtained. The nutmegs which have been broken or damaged by insects are roasted, ground and pressed for the fat, which is used for cosmetic and medicinal purposes.

A tree abounding in the forests of Africa and called by Kaffirs "chignite," yields (from the fruit bark the exact source being unknown) a white butter-like substance which constitutes an important article of commerce on that continent.

POSITION OFFERED MURRAY A. DALMAN

PRESENT PRINCIPAL OF THE GREENCASTLE HIGH SCHOOL HAS BEEN ELECTED TO CHAIR OF MATHEMATICS IN THE MANUEL TRAINING HIGH SCHOOL IN INDIANAPOLIS.

PROBABLY WILL ACCEPT

A position of head of the mathematics department of the Manuel Training high school in Indianapolis has been offered to Murray A. Dalman, principal of the Greencastle high school, by the Indianapolis school board and he probably will resign his local position and accept the Indianapolis offer.

The Indianapolis school board has asked that Mr. Dalman take up his new work immediately, which will necessitate his immediate resignation here. Although he has not definitely decided just what he will do, it is probable that he will resign here and accept the Indianapolis offer.

In case he does this he will remain here only until his successor is appointed. Mr. Dalman, who is a graduate of DePauw University, was principal of the Plainfield high schools before coming to Greencastle about three years ago. Since he has been connected with the local schools he has established himself here as a thorough and modern educator and has proven a valuable man to the Greencastle school system. Although reluctant to leave Greencastle Mr. Dalman feels that he cannot well afford to turn down the offer made him by the Indianapolis board.

IS NOT PLEASED WITH THE HIGH SCHOOL CONDITIONS

It is probable that the Greencastle high school will be refused admission to membership in the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, an organization consisting of all the colleges of the Middle West and the high schools which meet with certain requirements. H. G. Childs of Indiana University, the state inspector of the organization, was here Wednesday and after visiting the high school, stated that it was very doubtful whether the local school would be admitted to membership.

Two objections were mentioned by Mr. Childs. While conversing with several of the school officials of the city at the office of Superintendent H. A. Henderson Wednesday evening, he stated that the crowded conditions in the high school and the use of the outside toilets were two very objectionable features of the school. Mr. Childs will report the conditions of the Greencastle school to the membership committee of the organization. He is inclined to believe that Greencastle will be refused admission.

Mr. Childs has visited about 600 high schools during the past few weeks and according to a statement made Wednesday evening, Greencastle is the only one of this number which uses outside toilets. Practically all the schools have toilet rooms in the school buildings and perfect sanitation is possible. This was the main objection made by Mr. Childs but he was not pleased with the crowded conditions. He is of the opinion that the best results are not obtained in the local high school, and gave the impression that it could not meet the requirements made by the association. "The work of the teachers is unquestionably good," stated Mr. Childs when talking of the school conditions.

Greencastle high school has not been a member of the organization for the past few years. An application for membership was made to the organization recently and it was for this reason that the inspector came here. The purpose of the association is to raise the standard of the high schools of the country. If certain requirements are made of the school authorities and they are fulfilled, the credits of the high schools issued to pupils are not questioned by the colleges of the organization, when the students enter the high educational schools.
